New Incentives for regional and interstate entrants and musicians at McDonald's Sydney Eisteddfod

The Syllabus for the 2010 McDonald's Sydney Eisteddfod is now available. It is packed with events for aspiring dancers, singers, actors and musicians and entries can be lodged online at www.sydneyeisteddfod.com.au.

Widely regarded as the most successful competitive festival in the world, the competition includes something for everyone, but unless you have read the small print, you may not have noticed that this year some financial assistance will be available through the Sydney Eisteddfod 'TravelFund' for regional or interstate entrants who are required to return to Sydney to compete in any final.

We also take pleasure in advising that through the generosity of Mr Lorand Loblay, the Matana Foundation for Young People is offering two x $2,500 scholarships to instrumentalists aged between 16 and 20 years who qualify for the final round of either the John Allison Sydney Eisteddfod Piano Scholarship or the NSW Doctors Orchestra Instrumentalist Scholarship and can provide evidence of financial disadvantage.

We believe these incentives will be of particular interest to those who reside in regional New South Wales and other States, especially pianists and instrumentalists in the nominated age group.

If you require any further information, do not hesitate to call us.

Kind regards,
Jennie Lees PHD
